The Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival Presents Its 2019 Season
July 14–August 19 in Santa Fe, New Mexico

For immediate release

SANTA FE, NM—It’s a summer of several exciting firsts for the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival, which presents its 47th season July 14–August 19, 2019. From a brand-new series and highly anticipated artist debuts to inaugural performances and premieres of Festival-commissioned works, this season is filled with can’t-miss musical moments.

Throughout its six-week run, the Festival—which draws devoted audiences from around the globe—presents 45 concerts featuring a range of works that span six centuries (the 16th to the 21st), performed by 87 of the world’s greatest musicians. The season’s repertoire includes classics by Mozart, Brahms, and Dvořák; Baroque masterpieces by Bach and Vivaldi; modern gems by Britten, Françaix, and George Crumb; and newly commissioned works by leading American composers John Harbison and Michael Gandolfi.

FESTIVAL HIGHLIGHTS
Every concert in the Festival’s 2019 season offers something truly memorable, from compelling works to world-class performances in historic and wonderfully intimate settings. Here are just a few highlights concertgoers won’t want to miss:

• Over the course of three evenings (August 13–15), violinist Ida Kavafian and pianist Peter Serkin perform—for the first time in the Festival’s history—the complete cycle of Beethoven’s Sonatas for Violin & Piano. The set of 10 works includes some of the most unforgettable sonatas ever written, like the radiant “Spring” and groundbreaking “Kreutzer.”

• On August 7, conductor David Zinman leads Britten’s Serenade for Tenor, Horn & Strings, featuring two major artists—tenor Paul Appleby and Berlin Philharmonic Principal Horn Stefan Dohr—in their Festival debuts.

• The popular Music at Noon Series (which continues to offer a total of 10 concerts on Tuesdays and Thursdays) expands to include five Wednesday concerts—three of which (July 24, July 31 & August 7) are powerful recitals that celebrate iconic masterpieces of the piano-vocal repertoire, such as Schubert’s song cycle Die Winterreise.

• The Festival presents four commissioned works. Three of those works are world premieres—including string quartets by Grammy-nominated composer Michael Gandolfi and the two participants in the Festival’s Young Composers String Quartet Project, Matthew Ricketts and Alex Stephenson (August 2)—and the fourth work, a monodrama for soprano and ensemble written and conducted by Pulitzer Prize-winning composer John Harbison, is a New Mexico premiere (July 14 & 15).
• On July 28 & 29, Wei Luo gives the world premiere of the solo piano piece Poems, written for her by the Festival’s Artistic Director, Marc Neikrug.

• Eighteen artists make their Festival debuts, including standouts from the opera and orchestra worlds—such as Paul Appleby and Stefan Dohr (see above), New York City Ballet Principal Oboe Randall Wolfgang, mezzo-soprano Christianne Stotijn, and bass-baritone Philippe Sly—plus acclaimed up-and-coming artists like pianist Zoltán Fejérvári, violinist Paul Huang, and guitarist Meng Su.

• Six artists give solo recitals: violinist Soovin Kim (July 27) and pianists Kirill Gerstein (July 18), Wei Luo (July 25), Haochen Zhang (August 1), Gilles Vonsattel (August 6), and Zoltán Fejérvári (August 13).

• The Festival’s Sunday, Monday, and Wednesday series concerts showcase dozens of enthralling works, such as Hans Abrahamsen’s Walden for Wind Quintet (July 17) and Takemitsu’s Rain Tree for Percussion Trio (July 24), as well as masterpieces like Mendelssohn’s Octet for Strings (July 14 & 15) and Schubert’s “Death and the Maiden” Quartet (August 7).

• Dozens of renowned Festival artists make return appearances, including mezzo-soprano Susan Graham; pianists Inon Barnatan, Shai Wosner, and Jon Kimura Parker; violist Paul Neubauer; flutist Tara Helen O’Connor; clarinetist David Shifrin; and the Dover, Escher, FLUX, Miami, and Orion string quartets.

PRE-CONCERT TALKS
Director of Artistic Administration Valerie Guy hosts pre-concert talks with all four of the composers whose works the Festival commissioned and will present in either a world or New Mexico premiere: John Harbison (July 14 & 15), Michael Gandolfi (August 2), and Young Composers String Quartet Project participants Matthew Ricketts and Alex Stephenson (August 2). Pre-concert talks are held in the Women’s Board Room at the New Mexico Museum of Art one hour prior to each concert.

YOUTH CONCERTS
Every summer, the Festival presents four free Youth Concerts, which make classical music fun and accessible to children of all ages.

The concerts are held in St. Francis Auditorium at the New Mexico Museum of Art and feature excerpts from the current season’s repertoire, performed in highly engaging ways by Festival musicians. In 2019, the concerts—all of which have a theme—are on July 15 (Miami String Quartet), July 22 (Percussion), July 29 (Dvořák’s Piano Quintet), and August 5 (Bach & Schubert).

THE FESTIVAL’S 2019 GALA
The 2019 Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival Gala, In the Key of Summer, will be held on July 16 at the Eldorado Hotel & Spa in Santa Fe. This much-anticipated social event will attract more than 200 culture-minded individuals from across the country.

Pianist Inon Barnatan—hailed as “a complete artist” by former New York Philharmonic Music Director Alan Gilbert and “one of the most admired pianists of his generation” by The New York Times—kicks off the evening with a recital in St. Francis Auditorium at the New Mexico Museum of Art, performing works by Bach, Mendelssohn, Schubert, and Gershwin. After the recital, guests head to the Eldorado for cocktails and a gourmet, multicourse dinner with wine pairings; a live auction with exquisite, one-of-a-kind items and priceless experiences; and dessert and dancing in the hotel’s CAVA Lounge, where music will be provided by jazz pianist John Rangel and friends. This year the Festival is delighted to announce that Kenneth R. Marvel will serve as Gala Chair.

ABOUT THE SANTA FE CHAMBER MUSIC FESTIVAL
Founded in 1972, the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival has become one of the world’s preeminent music festivals, guided by a visionary spirit and dedicated to artistic excellence and innovation. Contributing to its magical feeling is the Festival’s unique setting amid the timeless splendors of Santa Fe and New Mexico’s Sangre de Cristo Mountains. For information on Santa Fe, visit santafe.org.

Under the leadership of Executive Director Steven Ovitsky and Artistic Director Marc Neikrug, the Festival invites both distinguished seasoned musicians and acclaimed emerging artists to perform during its six-week season every summer. Patrons return year after year to enjoy the Festival’s many chamber music concerts, solo recitals, and open rehearsals. Throughout the year, the Festival reaches out to local students in pre-K and grades K–6 with its innovative and inspiring music education programs.

MUSIC AT NOON WEDNESDAYS
During its 2019 season, the Festival expands its popular Music at Noon Series (which offers five concerts on both Tuesdays and Thursdays) to include five Wednesday concerts, all of which are held in St. Francis Auditorium at the New Mexico Museum of Art.

The Wednesday Noon Series begins on July 17 with three works—Schubert’s Sonatina No. 1, Debussy’s Violin Sonata (his last major composition), and George Crumb’s Vox balaenae (Voice of the Whale) for Three Masked Players—and ends on August 14 with two works: Thuille’s Sextet and Janáček’s Concertino. Both works on the latter program feature Berlin Philharmonic Principal Horn Stefan Dohr, who makes his Festival debut this summer.

In between those two concerts, the Festival presents three recitals that celebrate masterpieces of the piano-vocal repertoire. The first recital, on July 24, features mezzo-soprano Christianne Stotijn, in her Festival debut, and pianist Kirill Gerstein, a longtime audience favorite, performing Schumann’s emotional song cycle Frauenliebe und Leben (A Woman’s Love and Life) as well as a rich range of songs by Tchaikovsky and Richard Strauss.

On July 31, bass-baritone Philippe Sly and pianist Michael McMahon make their Festival debuts with a crown jewel of the art-song repertoire: Schubert’s hauntingly beautiful song cycle Die Winterreise. The work’s 24 songs, which Schubert wrote in 1827 (the year before he died at the age of 31), are based on poems about lost or unrequited love by one of Schubert’s contemporaries, the German poet Wilhelm Müller. The Winterreise recital runs approximately 1 hour and 20 minutes instead of the usual 1 hour for concerts on the Music at Noon Series.

To close out the recitals, on August 7, Grammy Award–winning mezzo-soprano Susan Graham—who served as the Festival’s first Artist-in-Residence in 2010—and acclaimed pianist Jon Kimura Parker perform Mahler’s gorgeous Rückert Lieder—five songs based on poems by the German Romantic poet Friedrich Rückert—and Berlioz’s beloved song cycle Les Nuits d’été (Summer Nights), featuring text by one of the composer’s friends, the 19th-century French poet Théophile Gautier.

BEETHOVEN’S SONATAS FOR VIOLIN & PIANO
For the first time in its history, the Festival presents a complete performance of Beethoven’s Sonatas for Violin & Piano. Over the course of three evenings (August 13–15), violinist Ida Kavafian and pianist Peter Serkin perform all 10 of the genre-defining works, beginning with the first three sonatas in the cycle as well as another of Beethoven’s early works: the Variations on “Se vuol ballare” from Mozart’s Le nozze di Figaro, WoO 40.

“Beethoven’s 10 violin-and-piano sonatas offer an opportunity to experience the compositional development of the master—from his Classical period through to the expansive innovation of his late style—in a concise, three-concert format,” says Marc Neikrug. “Gems along the way are the ‘Spring,’ ‘Kreutzer,’ and last G-Major Sonata, Op. 96.”

Kavafian and Serkin are longtime collaborators who famously performed together as members of the innovative quartet TASHI. Serkin’s first and most recent appearances at the Festival were in 2016, when he served as Artist-in-Residence, and Kavafian is a frequent guest of the Festival, having made her Festival debut in 1979.

“Both Ida and Peter have the experience, maturity, and reverence toward these great works to be able to present them in all their historical context and profundity,” Neikrug says.

SANTA FE CHAMBER MUSIC FESTIVAL COMMISSIONS

As part of its longstanding commitment to championing new music and supporting the careers of important living composers, the Festival presents four commissioned works in its 2019 season. Two of those works are by Matthew Ricketts and Alex Stephenson, participants in the Festival’s Young Composer’s String Quartet Project (see below); the two other works are by renowned American composers John Harbison and Michael Gandolfi.

On July 14 & 15, as part of its season-opening program, the Festival presents the New Mexico premiere of Harbison’s IF, a monodrama for soprano and ensemble featuring soprano Sarah Shafer. The work—which Harbison conducts, and which features his own translation of the poem “If from the Distance” (“Wenn aus der Ferne”) by the German poet Friedrich Hölderlin (1770–1843)—is a co-commission between the Festival, the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center, and Boston Musica Viva in honor of the latter’s 50th anniversary.

Harbison was born in Orange, New Jersey, in 1938. His many honors include a MacArthur Fellowship, membership in the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and the 1987 Pulitzer Prize for the vocal work The Flight into Egypt. A graduate of both Harvard University and Princeton University, his career began several years earlier, at the age of 16, when he won the BMI Foundation’s Student Composer Award.

Over the decades, Harbison has written works for most of the country’s leading ensembles and organizations—including the New York Philharmonic, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Metropolitan Opera, and Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center—and he’s served as composer-in-residence for the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, the American Academy in Rome, and several music festivals, including the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival in 1991.

Harbison teaches in the Music Department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he’s an Institute Professor—“the highest honor awarded by the faculty and administration at MIT”—and he serves as principal guest conductor of Emmanuel Music, a Boston-based collective of singers and instrumentalists. From 2005 to 2015, he was head of the composition program at the Tanglewood Music Center, and for more than a decade he was president of The Aaron Copland Fund for Music, whose mission is “to encourage and improve public knowledge and appreciation of contemporary American music.” Harbison and his wife, the violinist Rose Mary Harbison, have been co-artistic directors of the Token Creek Chamber Music Festival in Madison, Wisconsin, since they founded it in 1989. In 1990, when a German interviewer asked Harbison to describe his “artistic credo,” he said it was “to make each piece different from the others, to find clear, fresh large designs, to reinvent traditions.”

On August 2, the Festival gives the world premiere of Michael Gandolfi’s String Quartet: Dissembling the Essential, which the composer dedicated to the memory of his “teacher and dear friend” Oliver Knussen, who died in 2018 at the age of 66. In a program note, Gandolfi explains that the title “is derived from a phrase that I came upon while reading various works on the topic of temporality.”

Gandolfi was born in Melrose, Massachusetts, in 1956. He studied at Boston’s Berklee College of Music from 1974 to 1976 before transferring to the New England Conservatory, where he earned bachelor’s and master’s degrees and currently serves as chair of the Composition Department. Gandolfi is also head of the composition program at the Tanglewood Music Center; previously, he served on the faculties of Harvard, Boston, and Indiana universities.

Throughout his career, Gandolfi has developed important relationships with several ensembles, including Boston Musica Viva and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Memphis Symphony Orchestra, New England Philharmonic, Concord Orchestra, Grant Park Orchestra, and Boston Modern Orchestra Project. His works have also been performed by the San Francisco Symphony; BBC Symphony Orchestra; Nieuw Sinfonietta Amsterdam; and Los Angeles, Saint Paul, and Orpheus chamber orchestras, among other ensembles. His numerous honors include a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship, two National Endowment for the Arts Consortium Commission Grants, and a 2009 Grammy nomination for his orchestral work The Garden of Cosmic Speculation.

As a composer, Gandolfi’s style is sometimes described as neo-Romantic. Due to his many collaborations with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, he’s become part of the Atlanta School of Composers, whose work Robert Spano, the orchestra’s music director, has described as “tuneful, tonal and inspired by world and popular music.” In an alumnus profile for the Berklee College of Music, Gandolfi said: “A big part of composing is exploring what you have found that is uniquely yours. Finding and developing your voice is the most important thing.”

YOUNG COMPOSERS STRING QUARTET PROJECT
The Young Composers String Quartet Project, which celebrates its seventh year in 2019, allows two emerging composers to further develop their craft via a unique combination of technical training, professional exposure, and artistic encouragement. This year’s participants are the New York city–based Canadian composer Matthew Ricketts (b. 1986) and the Southern California–based American composer Alex Stephenson (b. 1990).

After being selected for the program, each participant is commissioned to write a string quartet. During the summer, they spend a week in Santa Fe with Marc Neikrug, who serves as mentor and advisor, and they meet with music publishers who share insights into how the music business works—from publishing to performances to recordings. The FLUX Quartet, a longtime Festival collaborator, acts as a sounding board for the composers, providing feedback from their point of view as performers, and later premieres the composers’ works during a Festival concert.

This summer, the FLUX Quartet premieres Ricketts and Stephenson’s string quartets on August 2 at 6 p.m. in St. Francis Auditorium at the New Mexico Museum of Art. The composers will join Director of Artistic Administration Valerie Guy for a pre-concert talk one hour prior to the performance.

OPEN REHEARSALS
The Festival’s Open Rehearsals—which are free and open to the public—offer a behind-the-scenes look at how artists and staff put together a performance.

Throughout the course of the Festival, the Open Rehearsals schedule is available in the lobby of the New Mexico Museum of Art; by phone at 505-983-2075; and online at SantaFeChamberMusic.com. Because flexibility is required during the rehearsal process, the rehearsal schedule, which is posted three days in advance of each Festival week, is subject to change or cancellation without notice.

NATIONAL RADIO BROADCASTS
Beginning in late spring 2019, 13 performances from the 2018 Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival will air on national radio broadcasts that are produced and distributed by the WFMT Radio Network. WFMT’s Kerry Frumkin and Festival Artistic Director Marc Neikrug co-host the series, which includes commentary from many of the Festival’s musicians. Special features and additional conversations are available online at RadioNetwork.WFMT.com/programs.

Listeners should check their local radio station’s schedule for details and broadcast times. To stream music from the Festival’s previous seasons, visit SantaFeChamberMusic.com/radio-programs.
BACKGROUND ON THE SANTA FE CHAMBER MUSIC FESTIVAL
Since it was founded in 1972, the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival has become one of the world’s preeminent music festivals, guided by a visionary spirit and dedicated to artistic excellence and innovation. Contributing to its magic is the Festival’s unique setting amid the timeless splendors of Santa Fe and New Mexico’s Sangre de Cristo Mountains. For information on Santa Fe, visit santafe.org.

With legendary cellist Pablo Casals as honorary president, the Festival’s 1973 inaugural season featured 14 artists performing six Sunday concerts in Santa Fe and additional concerts in other New Mexico and Arizona communities.

Under the current-day leadership of Executive Director Steven Ovitsky and Artistic Director Marc Neikrug, the Festival invites both distinguished seasoned musicians and acclaimed emerging artists to perform during its six-week season every summer. Patrons return year after year to enjoy the Festival’s many chamber music concerts, solo recitals, and open rehearsals.

Throughout its long history, the Festival has been at the forefront of contributing significantly to the contemporary chamber music repertoire. Since 1980, the Festival has commissioned 93 works from distinguished composers such as Aaron Copland, Ned Rorem, Ellen Taaffe Zwilich, John Harbison, Gunther Schuller, Mark-Anthony Turnage, Steven Stucky, Brett Dean, Magnus Lindberg, and Alexander Goehr, among many others.

In the 2010 season, the Festival began its Artist-in-Residence program, which featured opera superstar Susan Graham in its inaugural year. Since then, the position has been filled by pianists Yefim Bronfman, Garrick Ohlsson, and Peter Serkin; soprano Dawn Upshaw; and conductor and violinist Alan Gilbert, who has held the position three times.

Beginning in 1981, Festival performances have been broadcast on national radio networks, including the WFMT Fine Arts Network, American Public Radio, Minnesota Public Radio, and National Public Radio (NPR). The Festival currently produces a series of 13 hour-long broadcasts that the WFMT Radio Network distributes to more than 350 affiliates worldwide. Performances have also been heard on American Public Media’s Performance Today.

Throughout the year, the Festival reaches out to local schoolchildren with four free music education programs: Music in our Schools, which presents three chamber music concerts (performed by various ensembles) to students in pre-K and grades K–6 at Santa Clara Pueblo and selected schools in Santa Fe, Taos, Los Alamos, and Pecos; Strings in our Schools, which offers free weekly group violin lessons (culminating in at least one group concert) to students at Pecos, Ramirez Thomas, Tesuque, and Sweeney elementary schools; Guitars in Our Schools, an after-school program that offers guitar lessons two days a week to students at Kha’p’o Community School at Santa Clara Pueblo; and four summertime Youth Concerts, which feature Festival musicians engaging children with fascinating storytelling and performances of repertoire drawn directly from the Festival’s regular programming.
